Receiving Stock: Quick Reference

Use this checklist whenever stock arrives. The goal is one clean receipt: correct item, correct quantity, correct paperwork, and a movement record that explains the change.

1. Check the delivery

- Match the delivery note to the purchase order or transfer request: supplier, item, SKU, and expected quantity.
- Inspect packaging before signing. Photograph damage and keep the carrier's paperwork.
- Do not accept an item that is not in the catalogue until it has been added and approved.

2. Record the receipt

- Go to Inventory, find the product by name or SKU, and choose Receive stock.
- Enter the quantity actually received, not the quantity ordered.
- Add the delivery note or invoice number as the reference and a short note for anything unusual.
- Submit once. The new balance appears immediately and a Receipt movement is written.

3. Verify the result

- Confirm the new balance equals the previous balance plus the quantity received.
- Open Movements and check the entry: type, quantity, reference, actor, and time.
- Store the delivery note with the receipt record for the current period.

4. Handle exceptions

- Short delivery: receive only what arrived and note the shortage on the delivery note.
- Damaged goods: quarantine them, do not add them to sellable stock, and notify the supplier.
- Wrong item: do not receipt it into the wrong SKU. Resolve the mismatch before recording stock.
- If a receipt was recorded incorrectly, correct it with an adjustment or physical count that references the original entry. Do not create a second receipt to hide the first.
